

5 Best Trading Apps in 2020

Instant mobile applications have made it vehemently easy for businesses of any kind to work at the ease of fingertips. The trading market has also been aided with mobile software and applications for new-age investing and trading.

Online investments have taken the stage now and since the Covid-19 pandemic, stock trading has become quite effectively dependent on software therefore becoming an efficient tool for businesses and tech-savvy investors. Investors can now get instant access to data charts, rates and analytical data, etc. making it easy for real-time streaming and management of work. The top 5 trading apps are discussed below according to their efficiency of use, trading tech and practicality.

TD Ameritrade This trading application is the best a trader can get. With amazing pricing, a variety of features, and being an all-rounder, this application has it all for everyone. The account has no requirements for a minimum balance and also charges no fees for trading stocks and ETFs. The app includes various tradable assets including stocks, mutual funds, and bonds to name a few. The application is also very beginner-friendly and provides a large research base for its users.

E*TRADE This app is also considered an all-rounder and has been considered for its ease of use. The app provides a very beginner-friendly layout; the app provides an extensive resource pool for Research, Education, Futures Trading and Active Trading while working at a $0 fee for its regular stock trading and ETF trade.

There is a variety of trading tools offered to the users of this web-based platform which has been considered user-friendly and technologically sharp in providing tools like real-time streaming, risk analysis and position management to name a few.

Fidelity

Fidelity is an excellent platform for beginner investors. This top brokerage application has a focus on long-term investments; investments in retirement, education, and brokerage are easily managed through this app. It has a sleek and fine design which is best for navigation and usage including a bug-free smooth experience for investors and traders.

This app provides traceability of assets like stocks, ETFs, fractional shares for investment, and others. It has been a top recommendation in the areas of Research and Education for traders.

IBKR Mobile

This app is a device and user-friendly Platform which provides extensive trading options. It is a quick working app providing features like portfolio management and order entry. Interactive Brokers is considered the best platform for its services of Day Trading, Mobile Trading, and Future Trading while it has also been lauded for its Professional Trading for its users.

The new users also receive a special margin rate upon opening an account. This app has made it easier for users to have a global reach to markets in about 33 countries worldwide.

TradeStation Mobile

This professional application and trading platform offer a detailed layout and functionality. The app employs technological efficiency, providing a variety of trading features to the users. It is the best platform for Day Trading, Options Trading and Futures Trading.

The application gives options of use by developing versions for desktop, mobile, and web which are also device variables. Sufficient Research recourses are also offered by the platform with no monthly charges and free market data.